

Travelling To Haugastøl

It is possible to fly to either Oslo Gardermoen or Bergen Flesland airports and to travel on the Oslo-Bergen train line to Haugastøl. Bergen is marginally closer to Haugastøl than Oslo, but the connection between airport and station are much better in Oslo.

Flying to Norway:

The three major carriers flying into both Oslo and Bergen are

Norwegian Air – www.norwegian.com

SAS – www.flysas.com

British Airways – www.britishairways.com

Connecting from Oslo Gardermoen to Oslo Sentrum train station:

Buy your train ticket online at www.nsb.no and but a ticket from the airport to Haugastøl with a change at Oslo Sentrum (central), If for some reason you get delayed have a look at taking the Flytoget airport express train from Oslo Gardermoen straight into Oslo Sentrum it a much faster service and there is still a chance you could make the connection at Oslo Sentrum.

Connecting from Bergen Flesland to Bergen train station:

Take the Airport Bus from the airport to Bergen Bus Station and walk across to the train station next door, its also possible to take a taxi,

The train to Haugastøl:

To travel from Oslo or Bergen to Haugastøl by train you will travel on the Oslo-Bergen train line route. The train line runs through Haugastøl where there is a small station, but not all services stop at Haugastøl. If the service you wish to travel on does not stop at Haugastøl then book your ticket instead to the next village, 11kms down the track, Ustaoset. We will collect you by minibus from either Haugastøl or Ustaoset.

Book your train ticket online at www.nsb.no if you book 24 hours or more in advance you will be eligible for the cheaper Miniprix ticket. Tickets on Norwegian trains assign you to a specific carriage and seat, these will be indicated on your ticket by 'Vogn' – carriage and 'Plass' – seat.
